Miss Irene White of Bennington, aged 20 years, attempted suicide Monday by drinking carbolic acid. She suffered intensely from the burns and her screams attracted her mother, Mrs. Clinton H. White, to the barn at the rear of the house, where the act was committed. She soon became unconscious and for a time her recovery was considered very doubtful, but she is now thought to be out of danger. She was a graduate of the Bennington high school and had taken a special course in pedagogy at that institution, having been teaching until a few weeks ago, when she gave up the work and came home to care for her mother. No reason is known for her wish to end her life, and it is thought she may have been temporarily irresponsible mentally, caused by hard study.

ABOUT THE STATE

Happenings of Interest From Different Sections.

Many hay buyers are busy buying and shipping hay from the vicinity of Middlebury at the present time. An average price of $14 a ton is being paid to the farmers for the product.

Matthew Gray, while at work in the orchard of Frank Warner in Cornwall, picking apples, came near being hit with a stray bullet, which hit the barrel he was filling with apples. It was a good shot.

There is a possibility that the factory of the Vermont Hosiery & Machinery company in Bennington may be reopened, the board of trade asking that $11,500 be subscribed to give them control of the industry.

It is estimated that the washout at the concrete dam job at the Jones & Lamson works in Springfield will cost the contractors between $1,000 and $2,000. All the excavating for the power house and wheel pit will have to be done over as the hole was filled up with sand and gravel.

While out hunting last Friday, Oscar Kendall of Hyde Park had the misfortune to shoot himself in the right hand. He saw a squirrel and in drawing the gun towards him it caught on a stick and went off, badly lacerating the forefinger of his right hand and also burning his face and ear somewhat.

Ansel L. Barrows met with severe injuries while skidding logs in Stowe Monday. A log broke away and rolled over Mr. Barrows. The logs of the skidway scratched him somewhat, but a projecting knot in the rolling log cut a gash two inches long in the back of the head. One shoulder was badly hurt and he was otherwise bruised.

With the death of Mrs. Mary Hawes Paddock of St. Johnsbury, a provision of the will of her husband, the late Harvin Paddock, becomes effective. By this provision, $5,000 is given to Bright-holm hospital, St. Johnsbury, in memory of his son, Edward W. Paddock, as a fund for the purposes and uses of the hospital, to be known as the Edward W. Paddock fund.

W. C. Jones of Montgomery, Wales, who landed in this country August 25, stole a motor car in New York, came to Springfield a few days later and left town owing for his board at the hotel. In the Concord, Mass., reformatory last week for the larceny of an automobile at Fitchburg. Other indictments are waiting for him as soon as he is released.

By a curious accident which befell Waldo Buckingham, a young Hyde Park lad, Saturday, one eye had to be removed at the Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington Monday. The lad and his cousin were laying a floor in a house, when, in trying to split a board, Waldo drove a hatchet into it and then struck the hatchet with a hammer. A piece of steel flew from it into his eye, and when the steel was removed at the hospital, it was found the sight of the eye was gone, caused not by the presence of the steel but by some foreign substance on it. It was necessary also to remove the eye.

Miss Irene White of Bennington, aged 20 years, attempted suicide Monday by drinking carbolic acid. She suffered intensely from the burns and her screams attracted her mother, Mrs. Clinton H. White, to the barn at the rear of the house, where the act was committed. Bats as They Feed.

Bats fly as soon as darkness begins. They live on such insects as are then on the wing—gnats, mosquitoes, moths and beetles. The service they give to vegetation, even in temperate climates, is considerable. Some hot countries could not be inhabited but for them. Most of the race are miscellaneous in their feeding and not very delicate in their taste. They devour indiscriminately all animal substances, whether raw or dressed in any state.

The Eternal Impulse.

Fair Suffragette—and now if any one who has heard my speech wishes to ask a question I shall be happy to answer. Masculine Voice (from rear of hall)—If you haven't any other company, may I see you home this evening?—Judge.

Wise Dogs.

"Why is it that the dog is always referred to as the most intelligent animal?"
"Because he knows how to get a good living without doing any work," replied the horse—New Orleans Picayune.

A BATTLE IN THE SEA.

Wanton Slaughter When Bluefish and Menhaden Meet.

Did you ever see bluefish charge a school of menhaden at sea? That is something worth seeing. The bluefish throw their lines forward until they almost surround the menhaden, and they attack them flank and rear. The menhaden fairly make the water boil in their efforts to escape, while all around the enemy is at them tearing relentlessly.

Into all this commotion comes a great shark. It's a picnic for the shark, a school of menhaden all heaved up for his benefit. It swims leisurely into the midst of them, opens its mouth and takes in half a dozen menhaden at a gulp. It swims around and bites off half a dozen more from the school. It gorges itself without effort.

But the menhaden are not nearly as much disturbed by the presence of the monster swimming about among them as they are by the charging bluefish. The shark takes half a dozen fish or more at a bite, while the bluefish only bites a piece out of a single fish, but there is only one shark, while there may be thousands of bluefish plunging and tearing incessantly and killing and maiming at every stroke.

The shark's a brute, but under such circumstances the menhaden have less of fear than they have of contempt for him.

Saw a Profit.

The artistic temperament often lends toward poverty, but it frequently compensates its victim with a saving grace of humor which makes even the poverty a source of fun. A young woman who was possessed of the temperament and had given up everything else for it suddenly sold a picture for a considerable sum and made haste to apply the proceeds as a first payment on a small cottage she had long desired. The former owner attempted to advise her about the neighbors.

"Now, that couple next door," he said warningly, "they are right good neighbors, friendly and all that, but keep your eyes open. If they see a chance to make a hundred dollars out of you they won't hesitate to do it."

"Fine, fine!" cried the young woman. "I'm going over now and see if I can't get them to do it on shares."

An Editor Extinguished.
Here is a story of a bumptious editor, told in W. H. Ridgely's "Many Celebrities and a Few Others." The editor sat beside Mr. Gladstone at a dinner party.

"I received a note from you a few days ago," said Mr. Gladstone pleasantly.

"From me? Not from me. I am sure you didn't. You may have had one from my secretary."

Mr. Gladstone, though clearly hurt, nodded his head gently in acquiescence, and the conversation went on. Mr. Gladstone taking a predominant share. But the editor was not allowed to get a word in edgewise for the rest of the evening. Mr. Gladstone would neither see him nor hear him and, except to himself, he was nonexistent.

A Study in Anatomy.

"Mamma, what part of the body is the trombone?"
"No part of the body, my dear."
"Yes, it is, because it says in the paper here that last night while returning from the symphony concert Professor Gridel fell and broke his trombone."

The Eternal Impulse.
